

WATS Department representative

The WATS representative serves as the liason between students and faculty in the department as well as between WATS students and other QCNR students.

The responsibilities are:

1. Attend QCNR GSC meetings (once a month)
2. When invited, the representative might attend faculty meetings to voice student concerns and then report back to students about what the department faculty are working on (as a whole). (WATS department heads are not known to include students in their meetings so you might have to bug them or the staff assistants to get you in the email loop.)
3. The representative can confidentially aid students in finding answers about department policies that are not clearly defined.
