

University of Kentucky Department of Forestry and Natural Resources

The University of Kentucky Department of Forestry and Natural Resources is currently seeking applicants for a faculty position in Tree Physiology. Applications will be reviewed beginning November 1, 2017.

Candidates are sought with a demonstrated expertise and ability to conduct research in tree and woody plant physiology. Preference will be given to candidates whose tree physiology research and/or experience integrates the influence of forest/tree genetics, environmental stresses, and climate. At least one professional forestry degree is preferred. Candidates who possess postdoctoral experience are also preferred.

Please help circulate the attached announcement to potential candidates. The job details and application process can also be found here: <http://ukjobs.uky.edu/postings/153557>

Assistant Professor of Forestry

