

WILD Department Graduate Student Representative

List of Responsibilities

1. Attend faculty meetings
 - Usually 1-2/semester
 - Report on graduate student activities (e.g., Ecolunch participation, events we have held, any questions or concerns)
 - Take notes on topics discussed that are relevant to graduate students
2. Organize QCNR participation in Wilderness First Aid
 - USU's Outdoor Recreation Program and Desert Mountain Medicine set up the courses
 - In December, email Greg Davis: greg.j.davis@usu.edu.
 - Email the dean, the department heads, and the Office of Research and Graduate Studies to ask about their willingness to contribute funding
 - Once you know the dates from Greg and have secured funding, email all QCNR grads to inform them
 - MNR students are not eligible for fee waivers
 - Post-docs, faculty, staff and other employees are not eligible for fee waivers

Overall, this position is pretty easy. Faculty meetings are not the most exciting thing in the world, but good to see how they work, especially if you're hoping to work in academia.
